Co-founder of Sagard, a leading Buy-Out fund in French-speaking Europe

A graduate of École Centrale Supélec and the Wharton Business School (Palmer Award with high distinction), Frédéric Stolar has over 35 years of experience in Private Equity, including nearly 20 years as co-founder and Managing Director of the Sagard funds, a leader in mid-market investment across French-speaking Europe.

Frédéric began his career at Apax before joining Warburg Pincus in London as Head of the Financial Services practice. In 2001, with the backing of Power Corporation of Canada and Groupe Bruxelles Lambert (the families of Albert Frère and Paul Desmarais), he co-founded Sagard and successfully led the fundraising and deployment of its first three funds, establishing the firm as one of the best-performing French mid-market investment funds.

In May 2021, Maurice Tchenio and Frédéric Stolar founded Altaroc, where Frédéric serves as Managing Partner.
